

Need College Prep, General Ed, or Lab Science Courses for Your Degree?

College Prep

Are you ready to go back to school but not sure where to start? You are not alone. Our educational providers offer a variety of online courses to help you gain the skills and confidence you need to continue on with more demanding coursework later.

Some of our college prep courses include:

- Intro to A&P
- Intro to Bio
- Intro to Med Term

General Ed

With our general education and prerequisite courses, you can start pursuing your degree now – in an online format you can actually fit into your busy work/life schedule. Ben U General Ed classes are offered multiple times per year – waitlist not included!

Some of our general ed courses include:

- Critical Thinking
- Human Development
- Professional Written Communication

Lab Sciences

Science courses are common prerequisites for nursing and or other allied health degree programs. Finding one with a lab component – that actually fits around your work schedule – can be almost impossible. Don't let that be a barrier to your degree completion. Our regionally accredited academic providers offer these important health science courses complete with online labs.

Some of our lab science courses include:

- Anatomy & Physiology
- Microbiology
- Organic Chemistry

Academic providers include:

- BHMT Learning Exchange
- Cal State University San Marcos
- Coastline Community College
- Colorado Tech University
- KP School of Allied Health Sciences
- Los Angeles Pacific University
- Ocean County College
